

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH FOR PASQUALINO "PAT" RUSSO

Pat Russo is the current Treasurer of the Association of Inspectors General, and seeks re-election to the Association's board.

In 1990, he graduated from Brooklyn College of the City University of New York with a B.A. in History cum laude. Pat then attended Brooklyn Law School and graduated as a member of the class of 1993.

After graduating from law school, Pat began working at Cullen and Dykman, where he represented a variety of financial institutions, corporations and individuals. In 1997, he began a career in public service when he was asked to serve as Counsel to the Office of the New York State Welfare Inspector General by Inspector General (and former Association President) Paul Balukas, where he led and supervised investigations and criminal prosecutions of fraud, abuse and corruption involving social services contractors, employees and recipients. Pat continued in public service when he was appointed an Administrative Law Judge for the NYC Taxi and Limousine Commission ("TLC"). Pat was elevated to the Appeals Unit, and was subsequently appointed as the TLC's Chief Administrative Law Judge.

In 2007, Pat joined the NYC Department of Investigation ("DOI") as Inspector General for the City's social services agencies. At DOI, he supervised and led public corruption investigations involving public servants, contractors, and elected officials. Most notably, Pat spearheaded the federal corruption prosecution of a former NYC Councilmember for using discretionary funding for personal and political gain, as well as numerous, successful state and federal prosecutions of public officials and contractors who had defrauded the City.

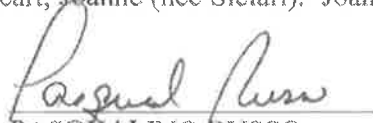

In March 2012, Pat joined Windels Marx Lane & Mittendorf, LLP as Special Counsel. He provides counseling to corporations, non-profit organizations and individuals on a variety of matters, including internal investigations, integrity monitoring and corporate governance. Pat was promoted to Partner in April 2016.

In March 2014, Governor Andrew M. Cuomo appointed Pat, with the consent of the NYS Senate, to the MTA Inspector General Management Advisory Board, where Pat still serves.

Since 2001, Pat has been an adjunct professor at John Jay College of Criminal Justice, where he instructs courses in the Master in Public Administration Inspector General Program.

Pat has served as the Treasurer of the Association of Inspectors General since 2011. In addition, Pat completed the Certified Inspector General Institute in August 2008 and attained the designation of Certified Inspector General. Since 2014, Pat has served as an instructor for the Legal Issues program of the Certified Inspector General and Certified Inspector General Investigator programs.

In 1995, Pat married his college sweetheart, Joanne (née Siclari). Joanne and Pat are the proud parents of Anne and Catherine.
